

Further from California. Additional Particulars of the Loss of the Independence.

New York, April 25. The steamer Star of the West arrived this evening, at 8 o'clock, from San Juan, with California dates to the 1st inst. and over 500 passengers, brought down by the steamer Sierra Nevada.

The intelligence from San Juan is peaceful, and of a satisfactory character. The utmost cordiality of feeling existed between the officers of the American and British vessels of war.

The people of San Juan held a election for city officers on the 15th. when Mr. Martin was re-elected Mayor without opposition, the British Consul having previously notified the English residents that if they voted at the election they could not expect protection from his Government.

The Burning of the Independence. Intelligence from San Francisco fully confirms the loss of the steamer Independence—120 passengers are known to have been lost, and it was the opinion of those saved that the loss of life exceeded 150, exclusive of children.

The passengers of the Independence censure the captain for the manner in which the steamer was permitted to strike the reef. They say that the morning was perfectly clear, and that the captain was warned of the danger of the ship, to which he replied "go to—It is my own business." Afterwards, however, he behaved with great courage and humanity.

Captain Sampson states that the whole number lost from the Independence was 125, including 15 of the crew. In his statement of the disaster Captain S. says that the first boat launched was swamped, but the second boat reached the shore with a relief. Two other boats were then launched, in which all the passengers were then landed, in which all the passengers were then landed, in which all the passengers were then landed.

Spars, hatches, tables, and every thing movable, was thrown to those struggling in the sea, and thus sustained, many were enabled to reach the shore. One hour after the ship struck, the wreck was one entire sheet of flame. They say only persons remaining on board were the Captain and one coal passer. The boat from the shore succeeded in reaching the vessel, and the Captain getting in, with the assistance of the hands, succeeded in rescuing three boat loads from the waves.

Captain Sampson then pulled round to Magdalena Bay, where he found the schooner A. Emery, in which he returned to the Island. In the meantime, however, the passengers had reached the island to the south side, where they found boats belonging to whaling ships lying near. The passengers were all taken on board these ships, where their sufferings were relieved by the hospitable treatment accorded them.

The whale ship Meteor was finally chartered to take the survivors to San Francisco, where they arrived on the 31st of March. Captain S. states that had not the steamer taken fire, not a soul would have been lost. He also states that the reef on which the first struck is not laid down on any chart.

The Independence was a boat of 500 tons, built in New York for the Sacramento trade. She was valued at $100,000, and was insured in New York for $15,000.

The following are the names of the Pennsylvanians lost: W. A. Scofield; T. M. Wilson, and E. C. Marvin.

The town of Weaverville, recently destroyed by fire has been nearly rebuilt, and the town now presents quite a business-like aspect.

Indian depredations were increasing to an alarming extent, more especially in the neighborhood of Shasta, Calumna and Trinity counties. The efforts of the U. S. troops to check them had only been partially successful, and in one of the engagements Lieut. Edward Russell, of the 6th infantry, was killed.

Trouble appears to be brewing with the Indians at San Diego.

An extensive mine of native sulphur has been discovered near Diamond Springs, Sacramento.

The miners near Marysville were doing better than at any time since the settlement of the country.

A severe fight had taken place at the Sugar Leaf Mountain, Shasta Valley, between the Pitt River Indians, and a party of male packers, under Mr. Brainer. Several packers were killed.

The mining news from all parts of the country is most cheering.

A new article of cloth has been recently made at Cape St. George, Klamath county, which is to be called from the shape of bay, the Crescent City. It is well protected as a harbor, and lies near several gold mines.

Flour is selling in Oregon City at $10 per 100 pounds. Two tons were sold at $2 per hundred.

A bull fight was lately advertised at 111 corville, but the Americans not liking this Spanish amusement, insisted the bull whipped the matadors, and tore down the building.

An American Dentist in Paris. The following is furnished by the regular correspondent of the N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

Our young countryman, Mr. Thomas Evans has been for some time dentist to his Majesty, Louis Napoleon, and also to the present Emperor when Mademoiselle Mathie. He visits the palace in his capacity as dentist to the Imperial couple in ten days, and the last he presented himself, was in the morning about ten o'clock, when the Emperor asked, very kindly, if he had breakfasted.

On his reply that he had not, the Emperor rang the bell and ordered tea and a concert for Mr. E., who had thus the honor to participate in this morning's repast with Louis Napoleon.

On leaving the palace he gave Mr. E. a superb golden box mounted with diamonds—the Imperial Crown, in diamonds surrounding the initials "L. N." also in fine brilliants. The whole is beautifully finished, and was placed in a morocco case, with the letters "L. N." in gold on the cover.

Mr. Evans has been several times called to different capitals of Germany, (Vienna, Munich and Stuttgart,) to operate on the teeth of the members of the Royal families. He and his brother have the most brilliant and lucrative practice which has ever been enjoyed in their profession, in the French capital, by any individual or partners.

Later from Santa Fe. Independence, Mo., April 20.—The Santa Fe mail, in charge of Mr. Raper, arrived on the 18th. The party met with no molestation, though they saw numerous bands of Indians on the route.

Lieut. Heth, in command of the military post at Fort Atkinson, had determined to attack the Cheyenne Indians, and was only waiting till the mail had passed. This band during the winter murdered a discharged soldier on the plains, and refused to deliver the murderers to Lieut. Heth.

The forces at the garrison were very insufficient, but Lieut. Heth deemed it absolutely necessary to attempt their chastisement, as they had insolently defied him on more than one occasion. The contest will be rather unequal, and the result is feared. The government have been guilty of gross neglect in supplying an insufficient force at a fort where there is so much danger, surrounded as it is, by 5000 Indians of various tribes. A dispatch was sent by Lieut. Heth, notifying the Adjutant of the Sixth Military Department of the difficulty and circumstances.

SIAMER TWINS—These celebrated persons are now residing in the state of North Carolina, where they were living in married life, the wife of one having had six children, and that of the other five, in all eleven. The Boston Atlas states how annual they intended making a tour of the principal cities of the United States and Europe for exhibition, and will make their first appearance in Boston some time in April.

MARRIED: At the Catholic church, in Ebersburg, on Tuesday, April 26, by Rev. M. Corbett, Mr. JEREMIAH FAGAN, and Miss MARY MILLS, all of this borough.

DIED: At the residence of his father, in Cambria township, on Friday evening 15th inst., ROBERT J., son of Richard and Elizabeth Thomas, aged 15 years and 9 months.

At the residence of her mother, in Ebersburg, on Saturday, 16th inst., ROSELLE CLARA CUMMINGS, aged six years.

On Sunday evening, April 21, after an illness of one week, at the residence of Mrs. Crosswell, in Gaysport, Blair county, MARIA JANE, daughter of the late Isaac and Lucretia Moore, aged twenty-two years.

Death should come gently to one of gentle mind, like thee. As light winds wandering through groves of bloom, Detach the delicate blossoms from the tree. Close thy sweet eyes, and all without pain. And we will trust in God to see thee yet again.

It is a sad duty to chronicle the death of one so young, so full of hope and expectation, so rich in all the attributes which adorn and beautify the character of woman; of one so esteemed on earth for her excellent qualities, so honored in their bosom. Off to even in the blossoms of her youth, blighted in the spring time of her life, a death lies on her, like an untimely frost upon the sweetest flower of all the field.

To her relatives and friends this death, so sudden, so agonizing in its brief and unexpected termination, is something solein n, even to awe. There is a presence missing from their side, and they mourn bitterly for one who has gone into that mysterious hereafter, from which no friendly hand can beckon and no wall of woe call her back. Yet, all that live must die, passing through nature to eternity, and the inevitable decrees of Providence must be submitted to, even through suffering. Fair, bright, and lovely was the day which witnessed the transferring of the departed from the habitation of the living, to her last home in the silent mansion of the dead. Thus, sometimes, as in her death, his the brightest day a cloud, causing mourning in the affliction of an irreparable loss. Sunlight ever be the day above, and green and flowered the vines which shall chamber over the grave of innocence and youth.
